

I have heard that the FCC is considering changing Indiana's telephone privacy laws. The FCC should not approve or implement any new laws that lessen Indiana's telephone privacy laws.

Since Indiana has implement the current telephone privacy laws I am no longer interrupted at home by telemarketers. I use to receive 1-3 calls a day, no I may get one every two weeks.

I added caller ID service to help screen the calls. I am now considering dropping the service since I no longer need it.

Time at home with my family is much more coherent.
